SUPREME COURT.

When Supreme Court reconvened this morning Orange county cases were argued. The first was J. K. Darling, administrator, vs. Curtis Emery, administrator, and others. George Stow for Emery, H. K. Darling and Hendee & Fisk for client under gift.

The next case taken up was Jennie B. Smith vs. Frank Smith, divorce; Wilson for plaintiff, Smith & Smith for defendant.

THE CURTAIN FALLS.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Leon Czolgosz, was successfully electrocuted at 7:15 this morning. Three contacts were made, one lasting thirty seconds. He was pronounced dead at 7:16. Before the current was applied he faced the witnesses and said: "I shot the President because I thought it would benefit the working people. I am not sorry for my crime."

Czolgosz sat in the electric chair as he made his brief speech. As an attendant rapidly strapped him into position he said: "I am heartily sorry I did not see my father." The strap was across his face by this time. The condemned man marched to the death chamber unaccompanied by any religious adviser, maintaining his stolid hatred of religion to the last.

It was 7:05 when warden Mead announced to the witnesses that it was time to go to the death chamber.

The procession filed through the prison yard to the south wing. Frequentations had been taken to guard the prisoner, every body being kept a block away by the police. Czolgosz slept quietly through the night until 5:30 when he was awakened and the warden read the death warrant. He requested that his brother be admitted but this was refused. He ate sparingly. Electrician Davis stood near and closed one end of the death chamber.

Near the chair stood the warden in full uniform.

When the witnesses had seated themselves the final test was given the current. Dr. McDonald stood beside the chair. Then the warden and four guards went to the cell. Czolgosz was ready and was hustled out of the cell. With brawny guards on each side he walked with a hambling gait. It was 7:10 1-2 when he entered the chamber. He was seated in the chair immediately and made his speech. He kept his sullen nerve to the last.

The official list of witnesses follows: John Jaekel, State treasurer; Ashley W. Cole, railroad commissioner; Hon. H. Bender, State superintendent of public buildings; Charles R. Skinner, public institution; George Western, Norwich, N. Y.; C. L. Ingalls, Westfield, N. Y.; Dr. H. O. Ely, Binghamton, N. Y.; W. B. Solff, Rochester; Charles R. Huntley, Buffalo; Dr. A. W. Howe, Phelps; Dr. G. R. Trowbridge, Buffalo; A. Schleicher, New York; physicians, Carlos L. McDonald, New York; John Gerin, Auburn; deputies, H. Bonesteel, Troy, N. Y.; Dr. W. D. Wolff, Rochester; C. F. Ratigan, Auburn; George R. Peck, Auburn; G. E. Graham, Associated Press; J. F. Freeman, Publishers Press; C. H. Berrien, Laffan Bureau; E. F. Coutie, engineer.

The straps were adjusted by Electrician Davis. A ship was made in the right leg trousers for the electrodes. The arms of the prisoner were bound to the arm of the chair and the straps were quickly placed across the abdomen. Then the straps covering the chin and part of the nose were fixed. Then Czolgosz made a final effort to speak. The electrician glanced quickly at the straps and stepped to the lever. The warden gave the signal and 170 volts were turned on continuing a full minute.

After the announcement of death the jury and witnesses were conducted to the warden's office where the jury signed the death certificate. All were cautioned about discussing the case outside. After the execution the doctors conducted an autopsy. They found the brain in a perfectly normal condition, but it was above average in weight and formation, but showed not the slightest lesion. The doctors say every organ of the body was in a normal condition at the time of death.

When the warden visited Czolgosz's cell this morning at the request of the assassin, he said he wanted to make a statement to the people, but the warden declined to call others and the prisoner sullenly refused to say anything. When executed he was dressed in a pair of dark trousers, flannel shirt, which was left open at the front, coarse stockings and prison shoes. The body will be buried in the prison lot at Fort Hill, but when is a question.

The current was reduced after a first shock. It was then turned on in full force and slowly reduced to nothing. As the current was reduced the body relaxed. Dr. McDonald felt of the neck, then the current was turned on again for a few seconds. The doctor stepped forward with a stethoscope and after listening for heart beats, said "He is dead."

The body will be surrounded with quick lime according to a statement by Warden Mead, and guarded until the lime does its work.

The discourses given in Grand Army hall on Sunday afternoon and evening by R. D. Barrett of Boston, editor of the Banner of Light, and president of the national Spiritualist Association, were largely attended. The speaker covered a large field in Spiritualism, which was most interesting to his hearers.

Thirty-one were present at the meeting of the mechanical drawing class held in Trinity church vestry on Monday evening. The meeting next Monday evening will commence at 7:30. All others desiring to join the class are invited to be present at that time.

J. Edward Bailey and wife returned from Lebanon, N. H., on Sunday. On Saturday his horse, Mag, won the 2-23 race. The Governor was second in the 2-18 race, and E. E. Knott broke the track record of 2:17 by two minutes.

J. C. Hager of Boston, editor of the New England Druggist, is in town, obtaining from Mrs. E. A. Nutt, who took a stenographic report of the proceedings and speeches, a story of the recent meeting at Vergennes of the State Pharmaceutical Association, for use in his periodical.

A special train to accommodate these Knights of Columbus who wish to attend the working of the third degree at St. Johnsbury on Wednesday evening will be run at special rates on that afternoon leaving Barre at 5:15 o'clock, and Montpelier at 5:35, returning at the close of the exercises.

Nine tables were filled at the whist party on Monday evening in Grand Army hall by the Junior Order, United American Mechanics. The first prizes, two Pan American silk handkerchiefs, were won by George Wood and Mrs. W. I. Brown. The winners of the booby prizes were Mrs. W. I. Lawrence and Harold Lamb.

At its business meeting held on Monday evening, the Montpelier Military Band voted to give a grand concert during the winter for the purpose of raising funds for the current expenses of the organization. When the concert is given it is planned to have about forty pieces in the band, assisted by outside soloists, one of whom will be a lady trombonist from Boston.

Judge C. H. Darling of Bennington, Vermont, recently appointed assistant secretary of the navy, a graduate of Montpelier Seminary in the class of 1881. In the same class were W. J. Chapp, now superintendent of education of North Dakota, Prof. A. A. Halloway, a well-known organist and music teacher, Rev. C. L. Adams, pastor of one of the largest churches in Detroit and Alderman E. L. Laid of this city.

Mrs. E. J. Ennis was brought into city court Saturday morning where she pleaded guilty to selling intoxicating liquor and keeping with intent to sell. Judge Smith fined her $20 and costs in each case or $128.31 in all. This she was unable to pay and was remanded to jail. Unless the amount is paid she will be obliged to take the alternative sentence of the house of correction in Rutland. The nuisance case still stands against her.

While Isabel, daughter of Dr. P. L. Templeton, was riding horseback on Friday afternoon, the animal became frightened at an electric car at the corner of Barre and Main streets. In his plunging the animal threw Miss Templeton, who landed about twenty feet away, without sustaining injury. The horse took to the Central Vermont tracks and ran down through the bridge to the station where it was secured. One of its fore legs was badly cut in going through the bridge.

A rousing, old-fashioned house warming was given Calvin S. Parmenter of East Montpelier on Thursday evening by about sixty of his friends and neighbors. He has just completed the erection of a new set of farm buildings and this was the occasion of the event. The party gave Mr. and Mrs. Parmenter a handsome couch as a token of their esteem. Ex-Alderman Kent of this city, made the presentation speech in his characteristic dry manner and Mr. Parmenter responded happily. The evening was spent in a most enjoyable manner.

The November meeting of Marquis De Lafayette Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, to be held on Wednesday evening, November 6, at the home of Mrs. C. H. More, the Regent, will be in the nature of a reception to members of the chapter and invited guests. Music will be furnished by Wilder's orchestra. The subject for consideration will be the United States navy. Hon. J. A. DeBoer will speak on "The origin of the United States navy," and E. A. Nutt will consider "Vermont's share in the naval history of the United States." Refreshments will be served.

The burial of the late P. J. Gleason of Barre in the local Catholic cemetery on Sunday afternoon was one of the most largely attended ever held here. The remains were accompanied from Barre by a large number of friends in carriages and by fifty members of the Barre Council, Knights of Columbus. At Sibley street junction the cortege was met by about fifty of the local Knights of Columbus who formed an escort to the cemetery.

The marriage of Heber Calvin Cady, treasurer of the Northfield savings bank, and Miss Gertrude Helena Lee of Middlebury, occurred Tuesday at the home of the bride. Montpelier people have an interest in this wedding, inasmuch as the bride is a graduate of Montpelier Seminary, and was later a stenographer in the office of W. C. Washburn. Mr. and Mrs. Cady will be tendered a reception on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Pauline G. Davis, 46 Central street, Northfield, which will be attended by several from this city.

A district meeting of the Daughters of Rebekah being held at Plainfield Tuesday afternoon and evening. Ivy lodge of this city works the degree this afternoon and Social Lodge of Northfield this evening. Twenty-five members of Northfield lodge arrived in the city this morning, going to Plainfield on the one o'clock train over the Montpelier and Wells River railroad. A special will be run from Plainfield tonight at the close of the proceedings to connect with the south bound Central Vermont midnight express. Another delegation from Northfield will come down on the mail train this afternoon.

Miss Beckworth and Miss Stevens, teachers in the kindergarten at Plainfield, at the new school building, gave a reception in their schoolroom on Friday afternoon to the mothers of their pupils. About twenty-five were present and the occasion was a very interesting and enjoyable one. The work of the kindergarten was thoroughly demonstrated and illustrated. One of the interesting object lessons is a toy bank in the form of a dog which the children call Bruno. In this they deposit the pennies they earn at home and the proceeds are used to beautify their room. The perfect control under which the teachers have the half hundred little tots caused the mothers' eyes to open when they thought how hard it was to keep one within bounds sometimes when at home. The teachers, assisted by Miss Carrie Cross, served light refreshment to the guests.

The regular monthly meeting of the Montpelier Preachers' Association was held Tuesday in the Young Men's Christian Association rooms, commencing at 10:30 a. m. The general subject for the morning session was "The Preacher in the Pulpit," divided into sub-heads as follows: "Why there. The results to be sought," by Rev. G. E. Ladd of Randolph; "The preaching he is to preach," by Rev. D. H. Strong, Williamstown; "The necessary preparation," by Rev. D. L. Hillard, Cabot. At the afternoon session "The Pastor in the parish," was discussed. Rev. F. B. Kellogg of Waterbury spoke on "Character and necessity of his work," and Rev. E. E. Angell of East Barre on "Best methods in pastoral work." The attendance was unusually large.

The following data for the month of November, covering a period of fourteen years, is furnished by W. W. Neifort, acting observer at the Northfield signal station: Mean or normal temperature, 33 deg.; warmest month in 1890, with an average of 37 deg.; coldest month, in 1894, with an average of 28 deg.; highest temperature, 70 deg., November 21, 1900; lowest temperature, 14 deg., November 30, 1891; average precipitation for the month, 3.38 inches; greatest monthly precipitation, 5.68 inches, in 1895; least monthly precipitation, 1.97 inches, in 1898; greatest amount of precipitation in any 24 consecutive hours, 1.55 inches, November 3 and 10, 1895; greatest amount of snowfall in any 24 consecutive hours, 12.5 inches, November 24 and 25, 1900; highest velocity of wind, 52 inches an hour, November 18, 1892; average number of clear days, 4; partly cloudy days, 8; cloudy days, 18.

EREADFUL FATE.

Constantinople, Oct. 29.—Those who have been in hourly expectation of favorable news regarding Miss Stone and her companion have again been disappointed. Nothing definite has yet been received in the dealings with the missionary's abductors.

A point which is much discussed among those here who are interested in the case is what shall be done if the brigands insist on being paid the 25,000 pounds (Turkish) which they at first demanded. Scarcely half that sum is available thus far and it is believed that should an agreement on reduced terms be imposed the offer of a less sum than 25,000 pounds (Turkish) will be withdrawn even at the cost of the life of Miss Stone.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 29.—Six young Bulgarians have landed themselves to search for Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary and her companion, Madame K. S. Tsilka, and with the consent of the Bulgarian authorities, have left Samakov for Mehemlia, with this object in view. The absence of news about Miss Stone has led to a revival of the report that she has already been killed and that the brigands have dispersed.

Washington, Oct. 29.—The state department officials are more sanguine than they have been of late as to the successful outcome of the efforts now being put forth in behalf of Miss Stone so far. It is true they have not succeeded in establishing communication with the kidnappers, but reports they have received from Spencer Eddy at Constantinople and Mr. Dickenson at Sofia encourage the belief that they are about at a point where direct negotiations will open with the brigands.

DEER IN MARSHFIELD.

Marshfield, Vt., Oct. 29.—W. H. Haskins, who lives on the river road about two miles below this village, brought down the first buck deer within the limits of the town. Early Saturday morning he stationed himself on the west side of "Nigger Head" ledge and there awaited the coming of the much coveted prize. About nine o'clock, while perusing his Friday evening Journal, he heard a rustling in the underbrush, and looking up saw his game running past him at a distance of about forty rods. Catching up his rifle which lay across his lap, a steady aim sent a 30-40 bullet through the deer's neck, cutting the large vein nearly in two, and he dropped dead in his tracks. With the assistance of Allen Phelps, who lived over a mile away and to whom he went for a assistance, they brought the deer to this place, arriving about noon. During the afternoon it was kept on exhibition at the post office building where it was viewed by many who had never had an opportunity of seeing one before. Its exact weight was 200 pounds. Although not a large one it was a handsome specimen. Mr. Haskins intends having the head set up and the hide tanned for a rug. The animal is disposing of which finds a ready market among those anxious for a taste of venison. Moral: If you would be a successful deer hunter, take a Journal along with you.

A NARROW ESCAPE.
Mr. Homer M. Martin, of Union Village, Vt., who recently had a fierce encounter with that prime of fies known as "sciatica" tells of his miraculous escape in the following interesting manner: "A. G. Smith, Dear Sir:—Last March I was attacked with severe sciatic rheumatism which went from bad to worse for several months. My back would yield to no treatment. I could not sleep, nights or rest days. The pain was intense. The physicians said the sciatic nerve was partially paralyzed. I began taking Smith's Celebrated Cure for Rheumatism, and soon began to improve. I took only four bottles before the pain was all gone and I could sleep all night and walk without a cane. I am free from pain and can work, ride, eat and sleep, and am glad to heartily recommend the cure to any one afflicted as I have been."
Yours truly,
Homer M. Martin.

Now dear friends who are afflicted with rheumatism, why do you not profit by the experience of your neighbors who have been cured of this terrible disease by the use of Smith's Celebrated Cure for Rheumatism. The great blood purifier. Price, prepaid, $1.00 per bottle. Six bottles for $5.00.
